Updates from the Office of the Children's Ombudsman (OCO), Eric Reynolds

- Legislative Updates
 - Based on regional listening sessions and a recent study on increased custody petitions across the state, The Commission on Youth put together recommendations including some legislative proposals.
 - HB 1733 - An amendment was proposed to the relief of custody petition statute, currently requires a "preponderance of the evidence" and the amendment would raise to "clear and convincing evidence". The amendment did not make it through the General Assembly and was instead amended to have another workgroup convened by the OCO to assess the issue.
 - Individuals who file for relief of custody should be referred to social services to assess for services that can be accessed prior to filing the petition with the court. Based on the listening sessions, it was determined that this is not happening in all localities. Fairfax DSS has embedded two workers in the court system to handle these cases which has helped decrease the number of unnecessary petitions. The increase in petitions have mostly been in southwest Virginia.

- HB 1733 would require DSS to create a standard study similar to a social history used by the Department of Juvenile Justice to determine what services have already been accessed prior and what services could be provided to potentially prevent the relief of custody petition.
- SB 801 – recommended by the Office of Children’s Services. There was a workgroup put together regarding policies and procedures for Child in Need of Services (CHINS) cases going through the Family Assessment and Planning Team (FAPT) and whether those children are eligible for Children Services Act (CSA) funds. The bill clarifies that any child determined to be in need of services, by the court or by the FAPT, are eligible for CSA funded services.
- SB 1406 - Amendment to the OCO statute – Previously it was only required to inform foster parents of the OCO. This amendment would clarify that the OCO can communicate with children in foster care and requires local Departments of Social Services to inform foster children, ages 12 and up, that they can contact the OCO. Amendment passed the General Assembly without opposition.
- HB 2457 – Directs Social Services to require local departments to apply for federal benefits for foster youth.
 - A similar bill (SB 818) was passed for VDSS to look at policies and ensure that children’s benefits, such as social security or disability, are protected. This was recommended in the OCO annual report.
- HB2613 – This bill would amend the definition of abused and neglected child to say that parental use of substances (alcohol and marijuana specifically) does not constitute abuse and neglect unless there is other evidence of abuse and neglect in the case. This bill came up last year and was vetoed by the Governor and likely will be again this year.
- Budget items in the General Assembly version that the OCO is urging the Governor to consider:
 - Funding for Child Advocacy Centers and Community Action Agencies.
- There have been issues identified around validation of referrals and investigations for Child Protective Services, including for child fatality and near-fatality cases.
- Working with Department of Criminal Justice Services on projects to assist communities with mental and behavioral health issues through Courts Services Units, Community Services Boards, and social services.
- Continuing to work with Virginia Department of Health on state plan work for Substance Exposed Infants. The workgroups have had robust discussions and there may be future legislation coming out of the workgroup that would further clarify responsibilities of the medical community, community services boards, and local departments of social services in these cases.
- Continuing work with DSS on parental child safety program and getting feedback on what improvements are necessary.

FACT Updates, Nicole Poulin

- Grants Committee Updates - FACT had a recent increase in income and is assessing options for larger grant opportunities which would be subject to the VDSS procurement process. A survey was sent out for community organization input on funding needs.
- Problematic Sexual Behavior Project - In June, Justice 3D, FACT contractor, started developing

Discussion of 2025 CAN CAPTA Report, Ginny Powell & Jeanine Harper

- The Co-Chairs recommend keeping the same focus areas as last year's report: workforce development and the hotline, Family First implementation, and child death and review. Changes would be made in the framing based on information that has been shared over the last year.
- A motion was made by Eric Reynolds to accept the three areas for the 2025 CAPTA report (workforce and hotline, Family First implementation, and child death investigations and reviews). Ron Brown seconded.

Update from the Office of Trauma and Resilience Policy (OTRP) VDSS Workforce Development Activities, Laurie Crawford

- Previously, the OTRP held focus groups in 2023 and conducted a survey in early 2024 focused on workforce development. Additionally in 2024, a literature review was conducted on other states practices. Based on this information, recommendations were made:
 - Pilot Community Resilience Model for a year - Stacie and Laurie recently completed a 40-hour train-the-trainer on the model
 - Warmline for staff conducted by part-time retired DSS workers
 - Funding for these projects was not included in the General Assembly budget, so the OTRP is looking for other ways to continue the pilot work and focus on budget proposals for next year.
